Problem background

“Poor professionalism, politicization, lack of qualifications and motivation of civil servants, inconsistent and incoherent legislation, insufficient management and co-ordination capacity and mechanisms, undeveloped training and unclear institutional roles.”*

*“Assessment for Public Sector and Administrative Framework SIGMA’s” 2008

Kosovo public Administration

- Prior to the 1998 – 1999 war in Kosovo, the state administration was “purified or cleansed” of non-Serb civil servants;
- The UN Civil Administration, UNMIK, organized into four Pillars:
 - Pillar One, Law Enforcement and Justice;
 - Pillar Two, Civil Administration;
 - Pillar Three, Democratization and Institution Building, and
 - Pillar Four, Economic Reconstruction.
- Since 2002, MPS/MPA is responsible for “wellbeing” of the Kosovo Public Administration.

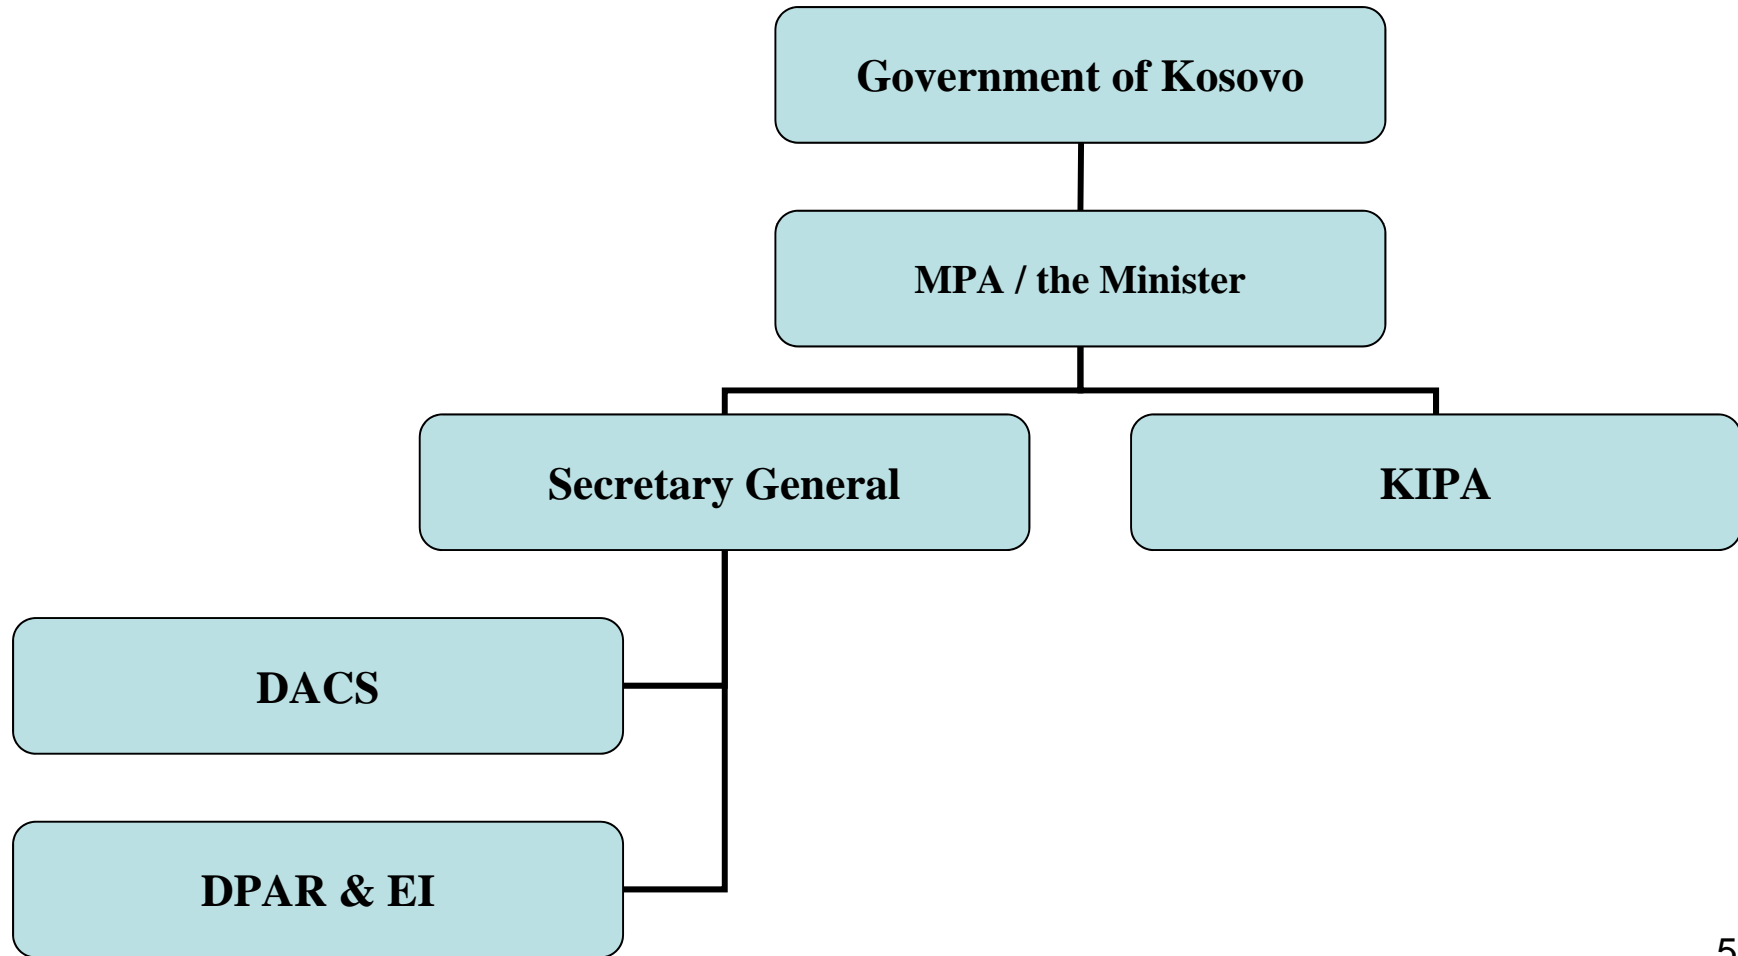

Reform of Kosovo Public Administration

- “The Strategy for Public Administration Reform 2007-2012”;
- The SPAR has its Implementation Action Plan;
- Government Annual review of Action Plan;
- Reform of PA it is closely linked with Process of European Integration;
- DFiD- Donor leader in PA Reform.

International Current Trends

Civil Service Systems

Career-Based system

- lower financial benefits compared to the more risky private sector,
- but provides health, pensions and redundancy benefits.
- posts are filled, generally, from within the service,
- development of a career path for each individual, through:
 - upgrading of qualifications, and
 - merit based promotion and mobility.
- organized training, performance and evaluation systems.

International Current Trends - 2

Civil Service Systems

Position-Based system

- posts are filled through open competition;
- recruited personnel are field experts;
- rigid as far as promotion and mobility;
- financial rewards reflect the open market;
- very few additional long-term benefits such are:
 - health;
 - pension, and
 - redundancy schemes, except in the cases where there are contract based arrangements.

International Current Trends - 3

Civil Service Training Systems

- In most of the European countries, participation in training is considered not only, but also an obligation of civil servants to attend;
- British system, continuous in-service education:
 - in-service training system;
 - modest regard to pre-service training;
 - little attention to specificity of pre-service education, and
 - trainings are specific, short and goal focused.
- French system, pre-service system, pays more attention to education received prior to employment.

Civil Service Training Institutions

- The legal status of training institutions continued to change in different development fazes of RAP.
- Civil service training institutions were and are under auspice of the ministry that is in charge of public administration and in charge of Reform of Public Administration.

Funding of Civil Service Training Systems

- Decentralized training funds – allocated to the employing institution;
- Centralized training funds – allocated to assigned civil service training institutions, and
- Also, some governments use the mix funding systems.

Main Conclusions

- Modern public services cannot be provided without continuous staff training and the education of experts in several fields;
- Common objective of a civil service training institutions is the continuous improvement of professional skills and education of civil servants;
- Legal status of the Civil Service Training institutes is closely interconnected with the financing modality;

Main Conclusions - 2

- The financial mechanisms have to facilitate training organization as demand driven not as supply driven;
- There are essentially three different legal status models of CSTC:
 - The traditional model, a training institute is part of the government structure;
 - Privatized- the training centre has been privatized, and
 - Hybrid constellation

Recommendations -1

Primary Recommendations

- Adoption of Law on KIPA, market-like and client-driven philosophy;
- Establishment of:
 - The Executive Board of KIPA, and
 - The Advisory Board of KIPA
- Twining with a similar institution from any of the EU Member States;
- Institutions would be obliged to plan the yearly training budget not less than 1.5 % of salary budget, targeting level of 3% by 2015.

Recommendations - 2

Secondary recommendations

- New Amendments to Law on Civil Service and to Law of Management of Public Finance, which will allow the KIPA to enter in contract arrangements, not only selling services but also buying in the services;
- Introduction of Public Administration Exam, The KIPA should be the institution which will organize the exam, and
- Introduction of Advanced Professional Postgraduate Studies in Public Administration. For three years under auspice of RIT.

Recommendations - 3

Recommendations on KIPA's Strategic Objectives

- Leader in analysis and debate of public administration issues;
- Centre of excellence for specific programmes;
- Postgraduate Advanced Studies Program in Public Administration, and
- Transformation of the KIPA into non-profit Public/Private Institution.
